We've come across so many GPS locator's over the past year, it's ridiculous. The worst part is every one we've looked at functions the same and looks the same as all the others. Finally, we have something a little different.

nanofinder has a variety of GPS tracking devices that are similar to other competing products in terms of specs, but are uniquely designed. Take, for instance, the nanofinder NT2000 PetFinder. Sure, it's a typical pet tracker with GPS and geofencing options, but it has personality. With a variety of color options and funky patterns, the PetFinder might be an accessory your pet would be proud of. Maybe not, but it sure looks a whole lot better than the clunky, black, convict looks of some other pet finders.

nanofinder also has a FriendFinder with cellular connectivity and the ability to update your social network accounts such as Facebook, a Personal Finder, Car Finder, Time Finder (you know you're in trouble when...), and a bunch of software options.

A few of nanofinder's products haven't been released yet, though they will be in the next few months. Prices range from $149.00 for the Personal Finder up to $259 for the CarFinder. nanonavi service plans are priced at $11.90/month or $142.80/year.
